

10. Involving young people in our biodiversity work - photography?

We are keen to involve young people in as many different ways as possible.

A number of young people from different organisations are involved in tree planting (see below), and we are aware of some young people from a local secondary school who are keen on photographing wild life.

Anyone who knows of such young people or has any other ideas for involving young people, please contact Elaine Brittan or Pat Ward.
